

Magic of the Mountain

2015 Photography Workshop

Mt Gravatt Environment Group

Sunday 24 May

Nature close-up

Brush up on your nature photography skills at a “workshop in the bush” lead by local photography buff, Alan Moore.

Shape, texture and colour in bushland – Photo: Alan Moore

The workshop venue is among the trees at Fox Gully Bushcare site within Mt Gravatt Conservation Reserve.

Cover the basics of digital photography – shutter vs aperture priority, macro vs telephoto and depth of field: getting the focus right. Then learn about the power of macro-photography.

Join Alan, on assignment in the bush, to practice your new skills. Alan is a passionate amateur photographer who has that rare ability to capture that feeling of being in the bush, whether it is that tiny fungi on a rock, a Rainbow Lorikeet perched high in a tree or the mood created by the flare of light behind trees.

Returning from assignment participants’ photos will be up loaded for viewing by the group and critique by workshop leader. Coffee and tea provided - BYO picnic lunch.

Workshop format:

8:30am Registration

9 – 11:40am Presentation (morning tea provided)

- Know your camera - shutter/aperture priority
